 TV show

“What impressed me most, though, was Anthony Logan Cole’s direction. Immersive theatre can easily become chaotic or self indulgent. This never does. Every movement, interruption, and transition between music, meal, and mayhem feels deliberate. The pacing is sharp. The tonal shifts are seamless. Even the improvised moments feel anchored within a carefully shaped framework. Guiding an audience in a space this intimate requires precision and confidence, and Cole clearly possesses both.

Conceived and created by Cole and Buccinni-Butch, Cirque Le Swing blends cabaret, circus, comedy, and supper club glamour into something that feels both vintage and alive. It is romantic without tipping into sentimentality. High energy without becoming overwhelming. Decadent without veering into parody.

Somewhere along the way I completely lost track of time, which feels like the highest compliment I can give. I was too busy laughing, gasping, eating, clapping, and watching the next jaw-dropping act unfold just feet away.

It is rare to leave a theatre feeling like you did not just watch something but truly experienced it. Cirque Le Swing is one of those rare nights. If you want a conventional evening out, this is not it. If you want to step into something immersive, stylish, and genuinely thrilling, this absolutely is.

HUGE HAPPY FACE”
